Conecta Magaluf-Mallorca has opened its international fiction project calls for its 2026 edition, scheduled to take place from May 25 to 28 on the beach of Magaluf, in Calvià (Mallorca). As it marks its 10th anniversary, Conecta will unveil the first details of its upcoming edition at the European Film Market (EFM) in Berlin. In this context, it will host an exclusive presentation and networking event on February 13.

Over the past decade, Conecta has established itself as a key international co-production market for serialized fiction and feature-length projects aimed at the television and digital space. Throughout these years, the event has brought together producers, broadcasters, streaming platforms, sales agents and international investors, with a strong focus on developing content with clear international potential.

As part of its presence at EFM, Conecta will also host an industry gathering to present Conecta Magaluf-Mallorca 2026. This event will feature speakers such as Pedro Vidal Montserrat, Secretary of Culture and Sports of the Govern de les Illes Balears; Juan Antonio Amengual, Mayor of Calvià; and Géraldine Gonard, Director of Conecta.

For its 2026 edition, Conecta has opened four international calls, all aimed at fiction projects currently in development. On the one hand, the Pitch Drama Series call is addressed to drama series and miniseries for television, across all subgenres, with between four and thirteen episodes per season. The deadline for submissions is March 5, 2026. In addition, the Pitch Comedy Series call targets comedy series and miniseries for television in development, in which comedy plays a central role in the narrative. Submissions for this category must be received by March 4, 2026.

At the same time, Conecta is launching the Pitch Vertical Series call, focused on vertical fiction series or micro-dramas designed for mobile-first consumption in a 9:16 format. The deadline for this call is March 3, 2026. Finally, the Pitch Direct To Streaming Movies call is aimed at fiction feature films in development conceived for direct release on streaming platforms. Projects in this category may be submitted until March 6, 2026.

Finalist projects will be selected by international editorial committees and announced in April 2026. The evaluation criteria will include artistic quality and originality, level of development, international reach, confirmed financing and audience potential. In this process, projects with a direct link to the Balearic Islands will receive additional consideration.

Selected teams will be required to attend Conecta Magaluf-Mallorca in person. During the event, they will take part in pitch preparation sessions, official pitching events, one-to-one meetings and professional networking activities. The organization will cover accreditation fees as well as three nights of accommodation for one representative per finalist project. SN
